Report description:

Headphones is the other category in consumer electronics which is seeing positive volume growth in 2023 (albeit smaller than seen in home video, the other category performing above 1% growth). This performance in headphones is attributed to consumers owning multiple sets of headphones, with different task-specific models for different purposes. For example, headphones for use while exercising, gaming headphones, headphones for use while commuting, or those for use with a computer for work (espec...
