Report description:

In Hong Kong, the impact of COVID-19 began to diminish in the second half of 2022, and so did the craving for ice cream as eating habits changed. In particular, take-home ice cream witnessed a stronger decline compared with impulse ice cream in this year. As individuals started mingling outside of the house again, the former saw a negative single-digit retail value decline. In addition, as COVID-19 restrictions eased, local consumers displayed an increased willingness to dine out. As a result, a...
