Market Overview:

The global potassium permanganate market size reached 289.6 Kilo Tons in 2022. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach 469.8 Kilo Tons by 2028, exhibiting a growth rate (CAGR) of 8.3% during 2023-2028.

Potassium permanganate is a chemical compound made by combining manganese oxide ore with potassium hydroxide. It is widely used to treat a variety of skin conditions, including fungal infections, impetigo, pemphigus, superficial wounds, and tropical ulcers. As it also helps in removing iron and hydrogen sulfide from well water, it finds extensive application in water treatment plants worldwide. Besides this, it is employed in metal processing, air purification, gas purification, fish farming, fumigation, food preservation, and wastewater treatment processes.

Potassium Permanganate Market Trends:

Potassium permanganate is utilized in the bleaching process of polyester. This, coupled with the burgeoning textile industry, is strengthening the growth of the market. Additionally, the growing health awareness among individuals and numerous initiatives undertaken by governing authorities to establish water treatment plants are driving the market further. Apart from this, as the chemical finds application in fire starter kits of automobiles, the thriving automotive sector is offering lucrative growth opportunities to market players. Moreover, due to the antiseptic and high oxidizing properties of potassium permanganate, it is used in the production of hand sanitizers across the globe. This, in confluence with the outbreak of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) and the surging need to prevent the spread of the pandemic, is positively influencing the sales of hand sanitizers and potassium permanganate market.
