Market Overview:

The North America e-cigarette market size reached US$ 11.4 Billion in 2022. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 31.3 Billion by 2028, exhibiting a growth rate (CAGR) of 18.2% during 2023-2028.

E-cigarettes, also known as vape pens and e-vaping devices, are battery-operated electronic devices that simulate the experience of smoking cigarettes. They deliver dosages of vaporized nicotine or flavored solutions for being inhaled by the user. Most of these cigarettes consist of a heating element (atomizer); a mouthpiece that is used for inhaling; and a reservoir which helps in holding the liquid solution. As e-cigarettes do not burn tobacco that generates tar and carbon monoxide, they are considered relatively safer than conventional cigarettes. In recent years, they have gained immense traction, especially among young adults and adolescents, owing to the aggressive promotions by manufacturers worldwide.

North America e-cigarette market is currently driven by several factors. The increasing awareness among individuals about the harmful effects of conventional cigarettes and their growing willingness to quit smoking tobacco products are catalyzing the demand for e-cigarettes in the region. Moreover, manufacturers are introducing new-generation products that offer different strengths of nicotine and enable users to refill the cartridge. In addition to this, the availability of different flavored e-cigarette variants including mint, menthol, chocolate, bubble gum and fusions of other fruits and flavorings are attracting a large number of consumers. Apart from this, the easy availability of e-cigarettes across the well-distributed retail sector has further escalated the market growth in the region.
