Report description:

The ongoing economic crisis in Algeria continues to threaten retail volume sales of baby food in 2023. The category remains plagued by restrictions on imports, surging inflation and the further devaluation of the Algerian dinar. This has affected the availability of imported goods and has put upward pressure on prices. The shortage of milk formula products caused by import disruptions is also a notable issue for the category. Baby food prices rose significantly in 2022, as the category relies en...
