Report description:

Demand for sports nutrition products is set to increase in 2023 driven by increased gym membership and a growing cohort of consumers that are passionate about being fit. Demand for sports nutrition is not only confined to body building, but also for sports enthusiast who participate in endurance sports, such as long distance running, and are looking to improve their performance. That being said, value sales for sports nutrition are still low and products are considered expensive. Also, with infl...
