Report description:

As individuals are adapting to the new normal as restrictions have been lifted, and are seeking to regain a sense of normalcy, the return to outdoor activities and sports engagements has become a prevailing trend in 2023. This shift holds promising opportunities not only for the health industry, but also for the recovery and current value growth of sports nutrition in China in 2023, after a year of decline in 2022. Furthermore, evolving health consciousness within society is catalysing a shift i...
