Report description:

2023 is another year of the wound care category returning to its pre-pandemic sales level. Consumers have resumed their usual active lifestyles following the outbreak of COVID-19. Both adults and children have returned to sports, hiking and other outdoor activities, with the demand for small trauma treatments rising. However, the largest category of sticking plasters/adhesive bandages remains in decline due to market saturation. The category grew significantly over the historic period, with play...
