Report description:

Dairy products continues to perform well in 2023 due to the pandemic coming to an end. Likewise, the return of tourists, more women in the workforce, and the expansion of chained supermarkets and hypermarkets will continue to drive growth. However, in 2023, dairy products face a new set of challenges due to inflated prices as oil and fuel prices increase across the globe. This will limit spending and drive many consumers to trade down and favour domestic brands, which are cheaper.
