Report description:

2023 saw further fluctuations in the retail volume sales performance of drinking milk products in Lithuania as demand contracted after positive growth was recorded in 2022. This followed a negative retail volume performance in 2021 after positive sales growth in 2020. Demand for the most important product in the category, fresh milk, is already very mature and, against this background, the retail volume increases that were registered in 2020 as consumers were preparing far more of their hot drin...
