Report description:

As consumption patterns continue to stabilise following three years of pandemic-induced disruption, the majority of analgesics categories in Hungary are projected to contract in volume terms in 2023. Rates of decline in most look set to be modest, however, and in many cases lower than those recorded in 2022. With the return to normal routines and the abandonment of COVID-19 mitigation measures, overall demand has been buoyed as increased levels of social contact have fuelled transmission of flu...
