Report description:

Analgesics is failing to record a strong performance in Lithuania in 2023; following the pandemic years, sales are stagnating, reflecting the saturated market and consumer base. In addition, a growing scepticism and concern about the overreliance on analgesics is impacting sales. However, positively, paediatric analgesics are very well received, being the major measure against fevers, a common condition seen in children during seasonal colds and flu. ?...

Euromonitor International's Analgesics in Lithuania report offers a comprehensive guide to the size and shape of the market at a national level.
