Report description:

There has been a strong increase in current value sale of weight management and wellbeing in 2023, although inflation has been a contributory factor pushing up prices. Consumers have resumed their active social lives and body image is a much higher priority than during the pandemic. Moreover, many consumers have become more concerned about their health/weight and are keen to lose weight. Nevertheless, Latvians are also trying to improve eating habits and good exercise routines, with many people...
