Report description:

The alcoholic drinks market has made a swift recovery from the pandemic losses of 2020, returning to pre-COVID-19 sales levels already in 2022. In spite of the difficult economic situation, premiumisation continued to be seen in Nigeria, although it slowed in 2022. Higher-income consumers, the key consumers of premium products, tend to be less impacted by difficult economic conditions. Another trend being seen in a number of countries is the ongoing popularisation of no-/low-alcohol products.
