Report description:

During the COVID-19 pandemic, the charge card category declined significantly due to restrictions on all activities such as traveling, dining and entertainment, which impacted normal patterns of expenditure. In the post-pandemic era, consumers have returned to routine spending, with robust value growth in 2023 in terms of charge card transactions. The strong rebound in the tourism and hospitality industry is having a notable impact, with high-income consumers shifting back to premium lifestyle e...
