Report description:

Childrenswear is facing the same economic issues as menswear and womenswear in 2023. Retail volume sales have decreased in 2023, due to the high costs of living and soaring childrenswear prices. The rising cost of living has forced parents to make cut backs on non-essential spending, including clothing for their children. The devaluation of the Egyptian pound has pushed consumers away from expensive imported apparel brands, with local brands becoming more attractive.

Euromonitor International's Childrenswear in Egypt report offers a comprehensive guide to the size and shape of the market at a national level. It provides the latest retail sales data 2018-2022 and analysis by distribution format allowing you to identify the sectors driving growth.
