Report description:

Historically, when a consumer applied for a bank loan, the commitment was typically honoured until the debt was fully repaid because the process of making a change was costly and time-consuming. In 2020, Chile introduced the Financial Portability Law (Portabilidad Financiera), which facilitates the switch of financial products, including existing loans, from one financial institution to another if it offers better credit terms to customers. This law increases market competition in terms of credi...
