Report description:

Canada's credit landscape in 2023 is showing rises in lending, with more Canadians gaining access to lending products via traditional financial institutions and private lenders. At the same time, as the cost of living bears down on Canadians, thanks to inflation and steeper interest rates, credit has become their shelter from the financial storm. TransUnion Canada reports that the first quarter of 2023 saw an impressive 5.6% uptick in total debt outstanding balances, pushing the record to just n...
