Report description:

Demand for consumer lending is set to see a moderate rebound in 2023, as the pandemic has eased, and consumer spending has returned, especially on services and in other discretionary categories. However, growth in consumer lending in China is expected to be slow, following the sluggish growth of domestic consumption and an ongoing real estate crisis, which is raising concerns over the stability of the financial system. Consumers in China are also becoming more cautious about job security, and ha...
