Report description:

Sales of edible oils have continued to decline in retail volume terms in 2023, driven in part by a further steep increase in retail prices. Price rises and the drop in demand is the result of several factors including the adverse effects of the 2022/23 drought and the volatility of the olive oil market as producers struggled to maintain supplies. The challenging climatic conditions seen in 2022/2023 led to one of the most difficult harvest seasons for olives in the past 20 years, resulting in a...
