Report description:

The relentless surge in food prices, driven by hyperinflation in 2022 and 2023, is reshaping the shopping habits of many Canadians. A considerable number of consumers are tightening their belts across various product categories, including meat. The exorbitant prices of meat have also taken a toll on the processed meat category. Furthermore, there is a growing body of literature shedding light on the adverse health effects of processed foods, including processed meat and seafood. This newfound aw...
