Report description:

With rising inflation, water supply issues, crumbling infrastructure and rolling power blackouts, South African fresh food producers are under extreme financial pressure and this, in turn, is passed on to local consumers. South Africa had been experiencing the same number of hours of no power since the inception of loadshedding in 2010 up until December 2022. The ailing state power company Eskom has faced endless problems, including ageing power stations that have not been upgraded in a timely m...
