Report description:

The retail volume growth rate of small cooking appliances is set to slow in 2023, with this trend also expected to continue in the near future. One of the key reasons for this is the removal of all pandemic restrictions, thus local consumers have been choosing to eat out more, or travel abroad, thus limiting the overall demand for small cooking appliances at home. In addition, rises in unit prices in line with the general increase in the cost of production has led to greater pressure on consumer...
