Report description:

Extreme weather conditions in 2022 and 2023 have had an impact on the production of starchy roots in the UK and around the world. Droughts and hot weather occurred in 2022, while a wet spring and summer delayed the campaign for starchy roots in 2023. Weather conditions significantly affected the size and shape of produce, which prevented them from meeting the specifications needed to be sold to retailers. As a result, fewer starchy roots were available, particularly potatoes, since most of potat...
