Report description:

Input costs for manufacturers of large cooking appliances remain elevated in 2023 due to stubborn inflation, putting upward pressure on retail prices. Nevertheless, the growth in price increases has moderated in 2023 relative to the previous year, due to the excess inventory held by retailers. Supply has outpaced demand in the post-pandemic era as household expenditure has shifted towards services and experiences, for which there was pent-up demand. Retailers have tackled this issue through disc...
