Report description:

Baby food packaging unit volumes, which had been registering positive, but relatively modest, annual growth rates during the earlier years of the review period, recorded a major sales spike in 2020, when the COVID-19 pandemic hit the country. This was followed by a decline in 2021, but an immediate return to positive growth in 2022, with sales in this year well above pre-pandemic levels. Aluminium/plastic pouches, the biggest pack type in baby food, have continued to record positive growth, even...
