Report description:

The reopened border between mainland China and Hong Kong in early 2023 had significant implications for the demand of analgesic remedies within the city, which rose considerably. This growth can be attributed to a shortage of analgesic remedies across mainland China, caused by the sudden relaxation of stringent zero-COVID policies in December 2022. The decision to ease these policies resulted in a widespread and unprecedented wave of COVID-19 infections throughout mainland China. As a consequenc...
