Report description:

After seeing exceptional growth in packaging volumes for processed meat and seafood in 2020 due to the pandemic, volumes turned to slight decline in 2021, and this continued in 2022, although volumes remained above the pre-pandemic level. In 2022, flexible plastic continued to account for the highest packaging volumes in processed meat and seafood. This is because flexible plastic packaging provides a barrier against oxygen, moisture, and light, which helps to preserve the quality and freshness...
