Report description:

Full-service restaurants continued to see positive value growth in 2023, with inflation driving price increases. With the economy slowing and moving into recession in 2023, local consumers have cut back on unnecessary expenditure, including eating out in full-service restaurants. Switching to cheaper alternatives has become more common, as full-service restaurants are typically more expensive than limited-service restaurants. The return of foreign tourists has provided some growth momentum since...
