Report description:

The unit prices of starchy roots increased significantly throughout 2022 and 2023 due to constant rises in the costs of production and unfavourable weather conditions throughout the year. Like other fresh food categories, the farming and production of starchy roots has been significantly impacted by the constant rises in the prices of fertiliser and petrol resulting from the war in Ukraine. Another factor decreasing overall output and driving up the cost of farming starchy roots has been inconsi...
