Report description:

Air care was the weakest performer in terms of volume growth in 2023. While air care registered both high current and constant value growth, volume growth was marginal. The increased prices dampened volume demand and consumers prioritised essential home care products instead. With spray/aerosol being one of the most affordable offerings, they continued to account for most value and volume sales. However, candle air fresheners registered the highest volume growth, though from a very low base.
