Report description:

Consumer foodservice in the Czech Republic saw growth in total current value sales and transactions slow sharply in 2023. This was partly explained the normalisation of demand following the impressive rebound that accompanied the easing of the pandemic and associated restrictions over 2021-2022. However, the downturn also reflected persistently high inflation, which continued to drive up menu prices and weaken purchasing power among the population. More cautious attitudes to discretionary spendi...
