Report description:

In 2023, home care experienced notable growth in retail value and volume terms. Rising inflation and higher price points boosted retail value, in addition to added-value properties and eco-friendly positionings. Retail volume growth benefited from an increased amount of people working from home, with remote and hybrid working leading to more use of home kitchens and bathrooms. As a result, there was an upsurge in demand for home care products and services with high levels of growth driven by air...
