Report description:

In 2023, current value sales of home insecticides in Japan registered positive growth from the previous year; however, volume sales declined. The decline in volume sales can be attributed to the fading of COVID-19. The pandemic had much less of an impact from 2022. People began going out socialising much more often than in 2020 and 2021, while universities and schools called students back to offline, and companies requested employees come to the office more often. As the amount of time spent ind...
