Report description:

Home insecticides represented one of the strongest performers within home care in retail volume terms in 2023., This was partly attributable to soaring summer temperatures, due to the effects of climate change, which brought about an increase in the presence of mosquitos and other insects. A growing awareness of the impact of insect bites on health, such as allergic reactions, skin infections, or the spread of infectious diseases, also drove consumers to use more home insecticides. As a result,...
