Report description:

Limited-service restaurants in Poland saw growth in transactions and current value sales slow in 2023 as stubbornly high inflation continued to drive up menu prices and make consumers more cautious in their spending habits. However, the downturn was not as pronounced as in other areas of the local foodservice market, as this category was one of the best placed to profit as weakened purchasing power led people to favour cheaper options. With the pace of life accelerating in line with the return t...
