Report description:

Sales were hard-hit by COVID-19 in 2020, as most vending machines are located in consumer foodservice establishments, at public transport hubs, and in petrol stations, and movement restrictions and closures limited foot traffic to such venues. As restrictions were eased and then finally lifted sales through vending machines situated in a public environment began to recover with this pattern continuing in 2023 with the World Health Organisation finally declaring the health crisis to be over.
