Key Highlights

Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex) is a Mexican state-owned petroleum company. It is the largest oil company in Latin America and the seventh-largest in the world. Pemex is responsible for the exploration, production, refining, and marketing of crude oil and natural gas in Mexico. It also owns and operates a network of pipelines and refineries. Pemex was founded in 1938 by the Mexican government after the nationalization of the oil industry. The company has played a major role in the Mexican economy since its inception, accounting for around 10% of the country's GDP.

Pemex's business operations are divided into three main segments, including Exploration and Production, Refining, and Marketing and Sales. Pemex faces a number of challenges, including declining oil production, high costs, and corruption. However, the company remains a vital part of the Mexican economy and is committed to playing a leading role in the global energy industry.
