Report description:

Folding cartons were gaining share as a pack type in meals and soup packaging over the review period. This is because folding cartons are generally cost-effective to produce compared to other packaging materials like glass or metal. In a price-sensitive market like Turkey, where consumers often look for value for their money, cost-efficiency is a key consideration for manufacturers. Moreover, this pack type is lightweight and easy to carry, making it suitable for on-the-go consumption as well as...
