Report description:

Plant-based dairy in Mexico is mainly represented by plant-based milk products such as oat milk or coconut milk. Demand for alternatives to cow's milk is being driven by two major trends - health concerns and environmental awareness. Plant-based milk tends to contain fewer calories than traditional cow's milk, and is often accompanied by several better-for-you claims. Furthermore, an increasing number of Mexican consumers are becoming increasingly aware of their intolerance to lactose and are tr...
