Report description:

In 2023, retail tissue in Greece saw a substantial uplift in retail value growth, driven by ongoing inflation. The retail price of tissue products saw significant hikes in 2022, which continued in 2023; the consequence of rising costs of raw material, energy prices, and increasing logistic costs that resulted in high production costs. In 2022, manufacturers had tried to absorb part of the increase, which had an impact on overall revenues for the year. As such, additional price rises were noted i...
