Report description:

Menstrual care in North Macedonia saw volume sales decline in 2023 as consumers made cutbacks in the face of higher costs of living. Consumers chose to economise and prioritise only essential purchases of menstrual care due to pressure on disposable incomes. The higher price of menstrual care has been an issue for women, but especially those in lower income groups. Overall, retail price inflation led to double-digit current value growth in 2023, albeit to the detriment of volume growth.
