Report description:

Asset servicing is a term that refers to a group of tasks and activities provided by a custodian or a central securities depository (CSD) to its clients around the assets they have under custody or safekeeping. These tasks and activities include processing of corporate events, handling of taxes, or collection of dividends and interest. Asset servicing can also be a contract to service financial assets, which can be either an asset or a liability, depending on the fees paid to the servicer.

One key factor driving the growth of the asset servicing market is the increasing complexity of investment portfolios. Furthermore, governments and regulatory bodies are continuously implementing new rules and guidelines to safeguard the interests of investors and maintain the stability of financial markets. Asset servicing firms play a vital role in helping their clients navigate this regulatory maze. Thus, the growth of the asset servicing market is driven by the ever-evolving landscape of financial regulations. In addition, with globalization continuing to shape the investment landscape, asset servicing providers are in high demand as they facilitate the seamless management of assets across borders. However, one of the key factors restraining the growth of the asset servicing market is high cost of asset servicing. Asset servicing firms provide essential and complex services, which require a significant investment in technology, skilled personnel, and infrastructure. As a result, they charge fees to their clients for these services. Moreover, the growth of the asset servicing market is hampered by the rapid pace of technological change and the accompanying cybersecurity risks. However, increase in popularity of alternative investments is expected to provide lucrative opportunities for the growth of the market.

The asset servicing market is segmented into services, enterprise size, end user, and region. By service, the market is
