Report description:

A freight brokerage service provider or freight broker is an intermediary between the shippers and the carrier. Using a network of these regional, national, and international ways of transportation, a freight broker is capable of providing the optimum capacity to each shipper to ship their cargo to the destination.

The global logistics has experienced tremendous transformation in the past few years. The COVID-19 pandemic is compelling the shippers to focus on using faster and cost effective method of shipping the cargo, which is expected to fuel the market for freight brokerage. Moreover, the growth in online sales owing to its ease is anticipated to fortify the demand for freight brokerage up to a great degree during the forecast period.

Freight brokerage market is segmented on the basis of end use industry, customer type, services, mode of transport, and region. By end use industry, it is divided into retail & e-Commerce, manufacturing, healthcare, automotive, and others. By customer type, it is divided into B2B, and B2C.
