Report description:

Merchant banking services are specialized services offered by merchant banks to their clients while considering their financial needs in exchange for a reasonable payment in the form of a charge. Merchant banks are a specific type of financial institution that caters to the needs of major corporations by offering loans, financial advice, and fundraising services. Due to their expertise in commerce, these banks are skilled in interacting with powerful businesses and sectors.

A high rate of adoption by merchant banking services among HNIs and an increase in demand for foreign investments are boosting the growth of the global merchant banking services market. In addition, the increase in the use of digital transformation technology is positively impacting the growth of the merchant banking services market. However, the high cost of merchant banking services and increasing security concerns are hampering the merchant banking services market growth. On the contrary, rising innovations in the Fintech industry is expected to offer remunerative opportunities for the expansion of the merchant banking services market during the forecast period.

The merchant banking services market is segmented on the basis of type, provider, end user, and region. On the basis of type, the market is categorized into portfolio management, business restructuring, credit syndication and others. On the basis of providers, the market is fragmented into banks, and non-banking institutions. On the basis of the end user, the market is classified into businesses, and individuals. By region, the market is analyzed across North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA.

The key players that operate in the merchant banking services market are U.S. Capital advisors LLC, JPMORGAN CHASE & CO., Bank of America Corporation, DBS Bank Ltd., NIBL Ace Capital Limited, MORGAN STANLEY, HSBC Bank USA, Citigroup Inc., The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc., and Wells Fargo & Company. These players have adopted various strategies to increase their market penetration and strengthen their position in the industry.
