Report description:

Video banking is a term used for performing banking transactions or professional banking consultations via a remote video connection. Video banking is a type of communication between a bank employee and a customer using video conferencing technology. In addition, customers may communicate with their bank through video banking while at home by utilizing a laptop, tablet, or smartphone. It connects a client with a banker or financial counselor via live video technology.

Growth in digital banking services and growing use of mobile phones and internet penetration across the globe drive growth of the market. Moreover, banks are moving toward digital channels to provide their services fuel growth of the video banking service market. In addition, personalized banking services to customers and rapid development in automation of the banking industry and growing use of technologies in the banking industry drives growth of the market. However, the market growth is hampered by security concerns regarding privacy of customers and security concerns due to extensive flow of customer data. On the contrary, technological advancements in the field of banking such as blockchain and artificial intelligence fuels growth of the video banking service market.

The video banking service market is segmented on the basis of component, deployment mode, and application. By component, it is segmented into solution and services. By deployment mode, it is bifurcated into on-premise and cloud. On the basis of application, it is segmented into banks, credit union, and others. Region wise, it is analyzed across North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA.

The report analyzes profiles of key players operating in the video banking service market such as AU Small Finance Bank Limited, Barclays, Glia Technologies, Inc., Guaranty Trust Bank Limited, NatWest International, Royal Bank of Scotland plc, Star Financial, StonehamBank, U.S. Bank, and Ulster Bank. These players have adopted various strategies to increase their market penetration and strengthen their position in the video banking service market.
