Report description:

The demand for bottled water has remained stable, with moderate-to-minor changes in the review period. For example, in 2022 and during 2023 there have been slight increases in consumption. Even with high inflation and increases in prices in the last two years of the review period, the consumption of bottled water is rising, albeit slightly. This performance has been helped by two factors. First, summer 2023 saw above-average temperatures, to be considered one of or close to the 10th hottest summ...
