Report description:

In 2023, the performance of alcoholic drinks in Norway was negatively affected by the fuller resumption of cross-border trade and international travel and economic pressures resulting from high inflation, a weakened Norwegian currency, high production, energy and transportation costs and higher prices. Demand was also affected by less favourable weather in summer 2023. As a result, total alcoholic drinks consumption fell, compared to 2022, although RTDs saw a strong, if slower, increase in total...
