Report description:

Hair care experienced double-digit retail current value growth in Brazil in 2023, and high temperatures were an important driver of this growth. The year 2023 was considered one of the hottest in the historical series according to the National Meteorological Institute (Inmet). In four consecutive months, from July to October, temperatures were above the historical average, with September showing the greatest deviation (difference between the value recorded and the historical average) since 1961.
