Report description:

Sales of home and garden products remained strong in Malaysia in current value terms in 2023. However, this was primarily due to inflation, which led to higher prices, boosting overall value sales. A surge in home renovation projects, fuelled by increased time spent at home following the pandemic, further drove demand for home and garden products. Moreover, the growing DIY culture, popularised through social media and online tutorials, is encouraging consumers to take on their own home and garden...
